published by Senior Class

Christopher Dock High School
Lansdale, Pa.

Foreword

In the pages of this book we have endeavored to portray our school — its students, its faculty, and the activities in which they participate.

Finding it impossible to express our true impressions in pictures and words, we invite you to look behind the pictures and read between the lines to catch a better glimpse of the personalities and activities we have known and loved so well.

Dedication

Miss Pearl Schrack

We, the seniors of Christopher Dock High School, Class of 1960, dedicate our book to you, our class adviser.

Your giving us a helping hand here and advice there has made us what we are today. Your guidance has helped us form happy memories of school and made us more ready to step forward into the world of tomorrow.

Dear Seniors:

"The gift without the giver is bare."

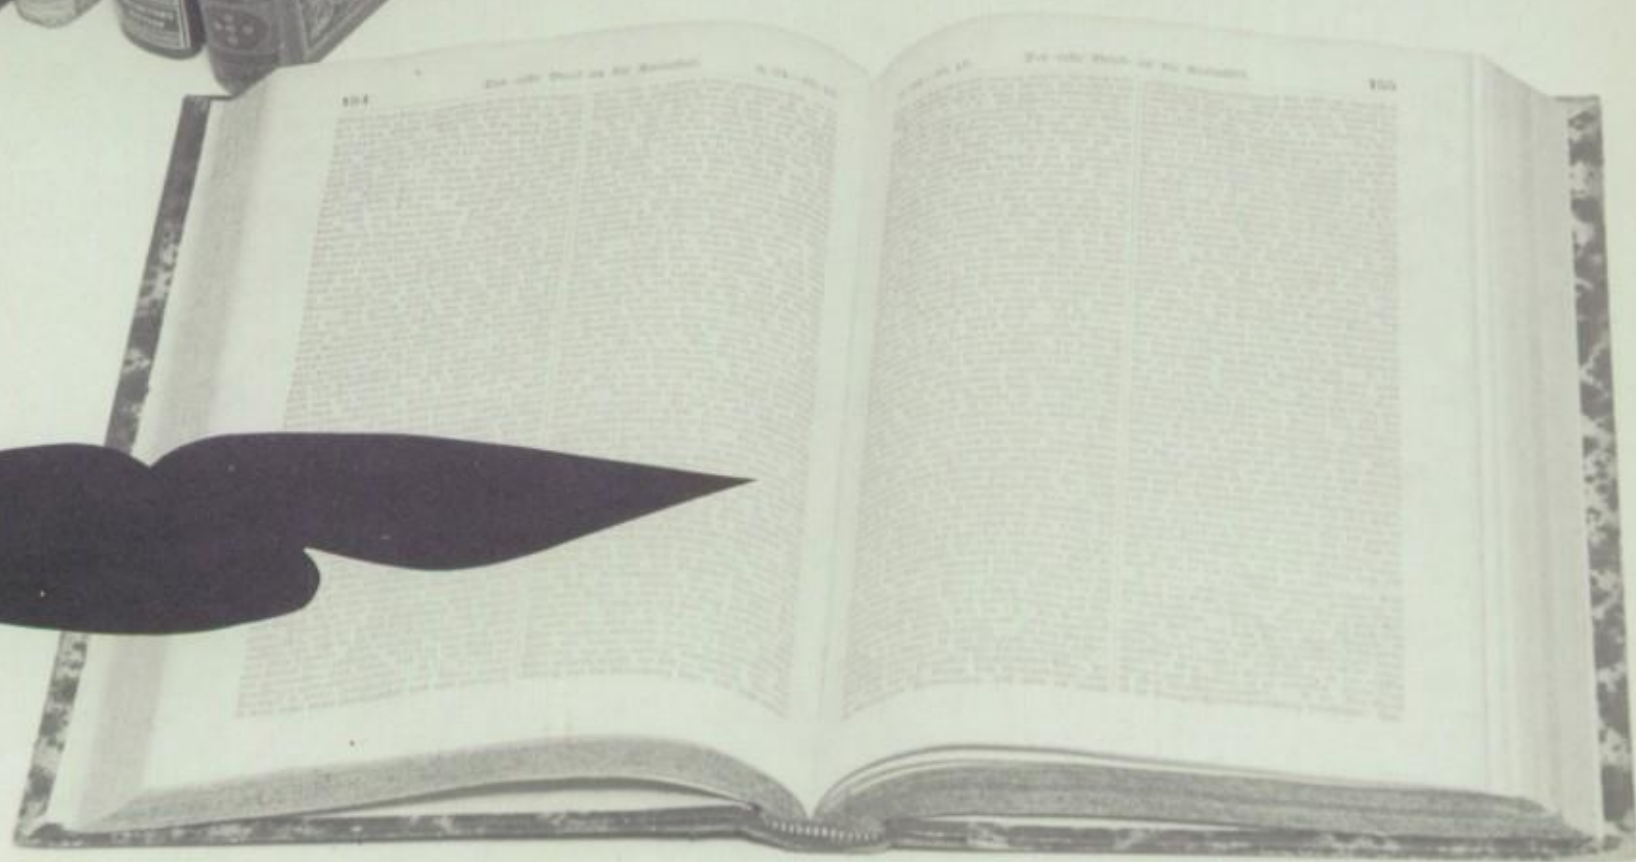

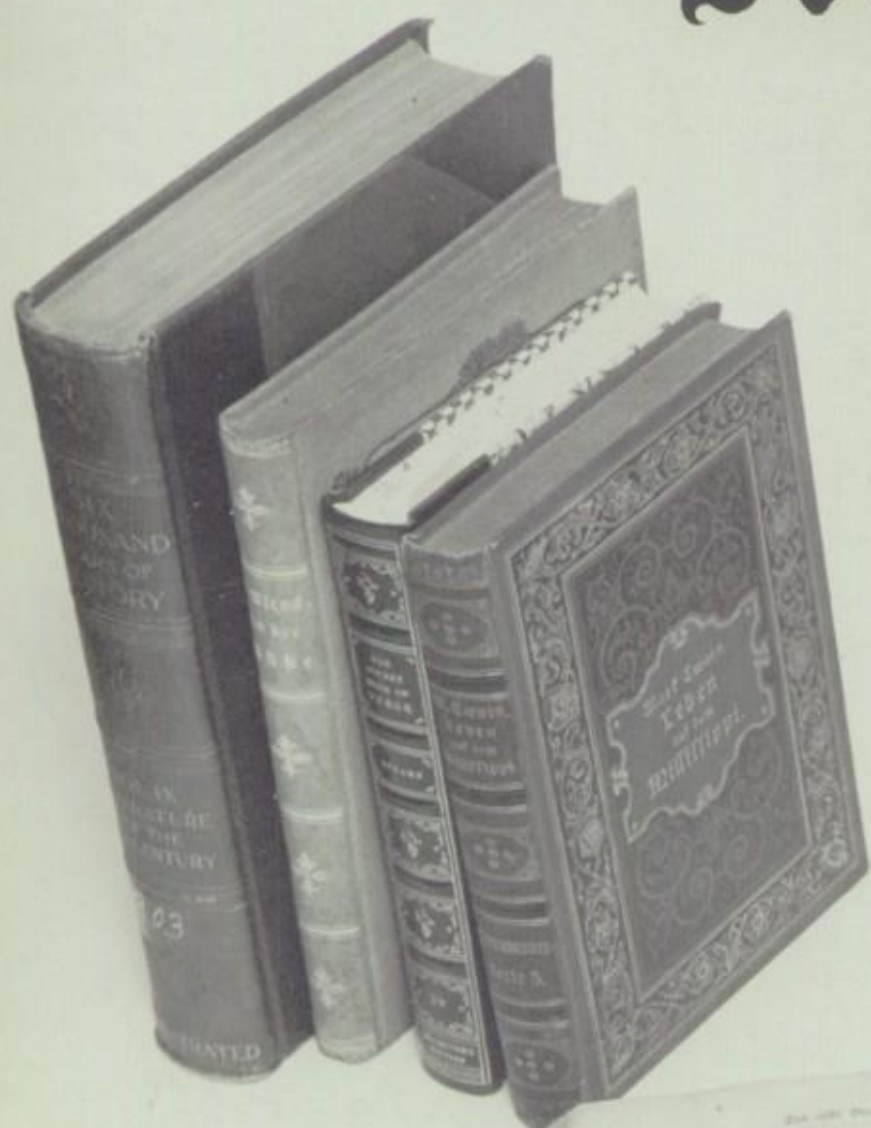

The coming years will record your usefulness. Your worth will be determined more by what you are than by what you have or do.

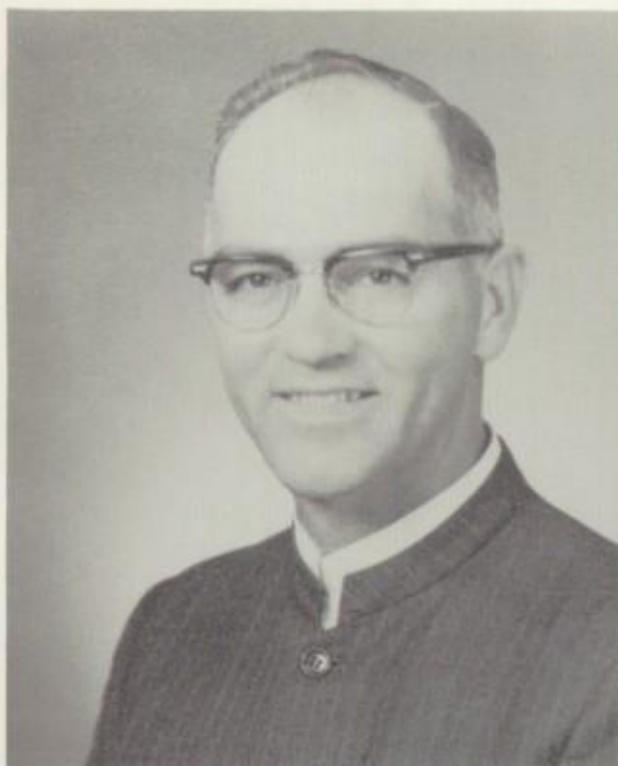

This means that the important goal of your life is to grow to be the person God has in mind. Only then will your doing be worthwhile — to God, to others, to yourself.

Any "gift without the giver is bare" and wasted. May God make your life and then make it useful.

Sincerely,
Richard C. Detweiler

Class Will

We, the Class of 1960, believing ourselves to be of sound mind after four years of hard work, do hereby bequeath to the members of the Class of 1961 those qualities and possessions for which we have become famous during our careers at C. D. M. S.

Arlene Alderfer sincerely wishes Maurice Fly to acquire some of her shyness. Joan Alderfer bequeaths her position in the front row in chorus to Lois Moyer, whose height causes her to remain in the back.

Lois Alderfer wills her secretarial responsibilities to Joseph Lapp, assuming they will be very helpful.

Rachel Alderfer bestows her shorthand and typing abilities upon Eva Landis, with the sincere wish that she will enjoy them to the fullest extent.

Robert Allebach reluctantly gives of his excessive height and dark hair to Leonard Walter.

Donald Brunner imparts to Donald Beidler his success as a solicitor on work days.

Wesley Clemmer wills his ability to play a guitar and appreciation for that type of music to Arthur Smoker, hoping that he, too, will learn to appreciate it. Jeanette Derstine grants to Mary Louise Myers, a bus passenger, her privilege of coming to school in a car.

Rhoda Detwiler lends her skill at slipping into her seat just before (or after) the bell rings to Peggy Halteman, who is usually one of the first to arrive at school.

Geraldine Freed graciously leaves a little of her dainty femininity to Eileen Landis.

Janet Freed thoughtfully gives her domestic inclinations to Dennis Benner and Ronald Moyer under the condition that they will be well used.

Dolores Godshall leaves her gregariousness to quiet Charles Clemmer.

Earl Godshall desires that Dave Alderfer acquire some of his studiousness, believing it will be beneficial to him.

June Histannd lends her culinary abilities to Bill Stoltzfus.

Katherine Horst unselfishly gives her driving skills to Joann Zieset, with the hope that she will appreciate them as much as Katherine does.

Phyllis Hunsberger gladly dumps her confused schedule on Leanne Clemens to add some adventure to her schedule next year.

Carl Keeler wills his woodworking skills to Rodney Godshall, who seemingly enjoys them.

Elvin Kolb thoughtfully desires John Goshaw to take up his frequent position at the end of the lunch line after a ten- or fifteen-minute noon study period.

Miriam Kolb bequeaths all her bookkeeping problems to Virginia Kreibel, hoping that she will find the solution to every one of them.

Harold Kooker kindly leaves his versatility to Ivan Derstine so that the school may continue to benefit from it.

Mary Kratz wills her attentiveness in class to Carl Swartz, desiring in this way to rid him of any future need to leave class.

Larry Kulp very generously gives some of his ability as a leader in the class to Catherine Malin, who may be a good one some day.

Samuel Kulp lends his interest in chemistry to Beulah Clemens, hoping she will come to enjoy it as much as he did.

Merrill Landis willingly imparts some of his superiority in basketball to be divided equally between the Mast twins.

Glen Landis wishes Ronald Alderfer to acquire some of his resistance to steady dating.

Bruce Leatherman readily bundles his affinity for history and gives these bundles to Arlene Swartley and Marilyn Landis, with a few remaining for anyone else who feels a need of them.

Ruth Ann Landis graciously leaves her love for a piano to Stanley Freed.

Anna Lois Longacre wills her bulletin board arrangements to Margaret Halteman's already abundant supply.

Henry Longacre cheerfully lends some of his driving speed to Lois Bechtel.

Hannah Mack is very willing to part with some of her quick, and often amusing, reactions so that Sara Ann Landis may enjoy them.

Miriam Meyers grants Susan Landis the privilege of using her campus home if and when she becomes Emma's chief helper or successor.

Lois Mininger bestows some of her height upon Mary Ann Rice, one of the shorter members of her class.

Elaine Moyer generously leaves her Santa Claus chuckle with Carolyn Ehst.

Judy Moyer willingly shares her perpetual giggle with James Derstine.

Rhoda Moyer adds her ambitions in the field of nursing to Jane Detweiler's flame of interest.

Freida Myers gives a portion of her serious nature to Ronald Godshall.

Louise Myers willingly dumps her Dockument headaches on Lorraine Kratz and hopes she will enjoy the work.

Mary Nice wishes Larry Landis to inherit some of her "everready flashbacks."

Ronald Nyce graciously bestows his nickname, "Tarzan," on Stanley Godshall.

Mae Reinford gladly wishes Jeanette Nice to share in her office practice experiences.

Elaine Ruth wills a share of her quietness to Sara Ellen Stoltzfus, who enjoys talking, especially in some classes.

Paul Shisler regretfully wills his camera and red hair to Dorothy Wismer and Marie Yoder.

Gloria Souder hopes that Carolyn Benner may somehow acquire as fine a chauffeur as hers.

John Merrill Souder desires Janet Swartley to acquire some of his versatile athletic ability.

Richard Weaver leaves a little of his love for VW's to Lowell Moyer, with which to influence the student body next year.

Mervin Zook thoughtfully leaves his long ride to school to Sylvia Clemens, who lives only a stone's throw away.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we have hereunto subscribed our name at Lansdale, Pennsylvania, on the seventh day of June, in the year One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixty.

1960

Fortune smiled on Dockton; the whole town waited in eager anticipation for the world-renowned lecturer of English, Miss Pearl Schrack, who was to lecture at their Christmas program. But fortune wasn't smiling on the lecturer; for, in the snow on the night before the program, her "bug" skidded into a telephone pole. It so happened the pole was in front of John Merrill Souder's farm, and after being invited to spend the night there, she tried to call the local garage owned by Carl Keeler. By some ill turn of luck, Hannah Mack, the excitable telephone operator, got the connections mixed and when the bachelor residence of Elvin Kolb received a call from Miss Schrack, its occupant was so confused he promptly hung up. Carl Keeler finally received the call and promised to fix the car.

Miss Schrack spent an enjoyable evening listening to the radio, especially the guitar music by Wesley Clemmer and news commentator Louise Myers' "Views on the News." The program was interrupted by the jangling telephone. Earl Godshall's steers got out. Could John Merrill come and help find them?

Early next morning Paul Shisler, local newspaper photographer, arrived on the scene of the ill-fated VW and had an interview with Miss Schrack. Upon Paul's advice, Miss Schrack accompanied him to the doctor's office for a check-up. In Doctor Harold Kooker's office she met chemist Sam Kulp with a bandaged hand because of an explosion at a demonstration at the local school. The doctor's emergency nurse, Rhoda Moyer, was leaving and Mary Kratz, the day nurse, was taking over. Meanwhile Mr. Shisler rushed to the news office to give editor Katherine Horst the latest news so Elaine Ruth could type it in time for that day's paper. His duty done, Mr. Shisler hurried to Bruce Leatherman's barber shop where Ernest Greaser, the local philosopher and politician, was explaining why the Republicans won the elections.

Richard Weaver, sports car salesman, upon hearing of the damaged VW determined to boost his sales that month. Weaver sauntered down to the drugstore to think up a sales talk just as Rhoda Detwiler rushed in to counter duty. They gabbed for almost an hour about recent happenings with Lois Mininger, the pharmacistess.

After her check-up, Miss Schrack registered at Allebach's Hotel and recognized the receptionist as Judy Moyer. While shopping in the remainder of the morning, she met Joan, with five children trailing after her, and Gloria, with four holding on to her. This was at Ronald Nyce's grocery store, and the cashier, Rachel Alderfer, was having a hard time trying to check out because of the many children. Miss Schrack decided to start to leave because of the population problem and strolled into Brunner's Restaurant for lunch. She had an enjoyable hour discussing teaching problems with teachers Freida Meyers and Miriam Meyers. They took her to the high school where the evening lecture was to be held; but when they arrived, the plumber Merrill Landes explained that the lecture couldn't be held due to Sam Kulp's explosion.

As she went past Principal Mae Reinford's office, she overheard Miss Reinford instructing phys. ed. teachers Arlene Alderfer and Glen Landis on better techniques for class. She then went to the nearest phone booth to call Robert Allebach for the use of the hotel reception room for her lecture. Suddenly she remembered she had torn the dress she planned to wear to the lecture and hurried with it to the tailor's. There she found Phyllis Hunsberger, who agreed to mend her dress right away; and Janet Freed, who was giving Jeanette Derstine some advice on tailoring. Soon a tired Miss Schrack was wandering back to the hotel thinking of the events and shocks of the day.

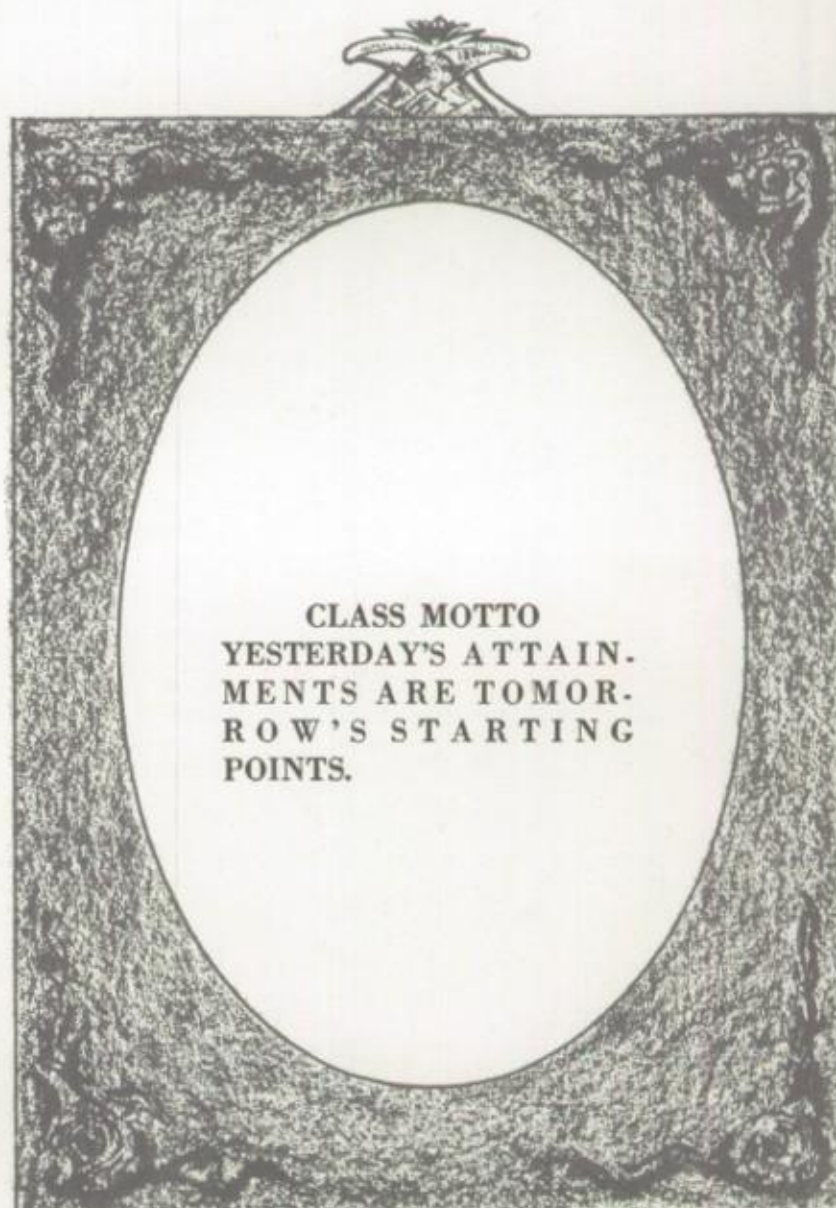

At the Hotel everything was rushed. Elaine Moyer, cook, and Geraldine Freed, dietician, ran out of turkeys, but thanks to Longacre and Zook's Poultry Place turkeys ceased to be a problem. Secretary Mary Nice was taking orders being phoned in while Anna Lois Longacre was putting the finishing touches on the decorations of the reception room. The waitress, Miriam Kolb, was scurrying around trying to serve everyone before the program started, besides trying to listen to Dolores Godshall's and Lois Alderfer's experiences of VS in California. At 7:30 that evening the whole town turned out for the lecture. Master of ceremonies, Bob Allebach, welcomed everyone and Pastor Larry Kulp rendered the invocation. Ruth Ann Landis, famous pianist recently returned from Europe, played several of her own compositions. Finally Miss Schrack's lecture was given. Everyone applauded and congratulated her afterward.

Late that night a happy and satisfied Miss Schrack drove off in a new car from Weaver Motors, Inc., leaving her old one behind with students of long ago to symbolize the old days gone by and the future happiness and success.

Activities

Student Council

Student Council is an organization designed to represent the student body's ideas and ideals.

The responsibilities of Student Council are undertaken in two ways: committee work and general discussion.

Each committee plans and carries out the activities of the school which come under its particular area.

General assemblies of the council give opportunity for discussion of pertinent problems, culminating with an approved plan for action. A weekly discussion in each grade provides a plebiscite to representatives of Student Council.

With the gracious co-operation of the faculty and administration, Student Council can develop responsibility and confidence in Christopher Dock.

Schul- Andenken

The word Schul-Andenken has a special meaning to Christopher Dock students. The meaning translated from the German language is "school memories"—memories of classmates, faculty, basketball games, assemblies, and so many other activities and happenings at Christopher Dock.

Along with the bustle—Shisler's camera, working on write-ups, soliciting for ads, typing copy, reading galley proofs, and meeting deadlines—came pleasant hours with jokes, stories, and just plain fun. But best of all was watching the pages of the Schul-Andenken gradually evolve into a book.

Dockument

The DOCKUMENT is a four-page newspaper published by students. There are six issues per school year.

The editor, Louise Myers, was assisted by Lorraine Kratz, assistant editor, in assigning news articles, feature columns, editorials, and then in editing and proof-reading them.

The DOCKUMENT had a subscription list of over 450 this year. The DOCKUMENT reports school news to students, parents, friends, and patrons of the school.

A Cappella Chorus

Touring Chorus

The 1960 Touring Chorus was composed of juniors and seniors. They toured over the week end starting March 31 and ending April 3.

The chorus gave a program at Neffsville, Pennsylvania and then went on to Ohio. There they rendered programs at Hartville, Dalton, Kidron, Smithville, Berlin, and Walnut Creek.

Through this tour the chorus hopes to have stirred up interest for a Christian school to be built in Kidron, Ohio. The chorus was glad for the opportunity to witness for Christ and our school.

It has been said that the door to success is labeled "Push." Four years ago we timidly opened the door of high school. Today, stronger in spirit, mind, and body, we are about to enter another door. To you—our parents, our teachers, our pastors—we give our thanks, for you have taught us the courage to open fearlessly the door to each new experience.
